

The Challenge of Developing Technical Talent

Development is no longer an optional perk or reserved for only certain positions. It's expected by today's talent. As leaders, our responsibility is to ensure our team members are given the coaching and direction to grow their skills and become more valuable to the organization.

For technical employees, their technical skill sets are critical to their success. Yet, the ability to work well with others and to communicate complex ideas effectively are just as critical in today's team environments.

"Technology alone is not enough" – Steve Jobs

During this workshop, you'll receive practical tools to help you analyze your team's soft skills capabilities and develop your talented tech employees. You will have the opportunity to collaborate with other leaders of technical staff and learn about their development best practices.

Workshop topics:

- Uncover traits of successful technical employees
- Evaluate your current team's skills
- Explore principles to help develop others
- Discuss development strategies with other tech leaders

Join us for The Challenge of Developing Technical Talent. You'll receive practical tools to help develop your talented technology employees so they can contribute more and reach the next level!
